

Check your list twice.

Review your list of interview questions. You should have a good mix of opinion-based, credential-based, experience-based and behavior-based questions that will provide a complete view of the candidate's background and personality.