

State Board. A newly formulated State Workforce Board, appointed by and including the Governor, has broad authority to guide development of a state's workforce investment system and coordinate the plans of federally funded programs. Business holds a majority of seats on the State Board in addition to representatives of local elected officials, state legislators, economic development officials, labor unions, the general public, and 14 programs in education, public assistance, employment security, and job training.